How was the climate in 2021?

US President Joe Biden rejoins the Paris climate agreement in his first move to tackle global warming.

Texas endures a historic winter storm causing extended power grid outages, after the deregulated & poorly winterised grid system became overwhelmed.

Climate Action 100+ finds that only a handful of the 159 companies responsible for more than 80% of global industrial emissions have set adequate net zero targets.

IEA published a bombshell report on how to reach net zero emissions by 2050 concluding no new fossil fuel projects should be sanctioned.

Shell was ordered by a court in The Hague to go far further to reduce its climate emissions, while shareholder rebellions in the US imposed emissions targets at Chevron and a boardroom overhaul at Exxon.

IPCC publish “Code Red for Humanity” warning the key threshold of 1.5 degrees would be breached in under 10 years time at current rates of emissions and warming.

A record heatwave and drought in the US West gave rise to two massive wildfires that tore through California and Oregon.

More than 200 companies joined a pledge to hit net-zero carbon emissions by 2040, including Amazon, Twitter, Salesforce and Procter & Gamble.

India commits to Net Zero 2070 target, however they miss a key COP26 goal for countries to commit to reach that target by 2050.

‘Uneconomic’ Cambo oil & gas project in Scotland to be “paused” after Shell withdrew from the project following widespread criticism.